The CBM index!

It's hard to believe that CBM is forging into its tenth year as the magazine for Gold-Atomic-Silver-Bronze Age collectors, but with the millennium rushing towards us faster than a speeding bullet there's no denying it. ("It" will BE here by the time this is published...) The vintage comic book hobby has gained a lot of knowledge in the last nine years. Some of it has been sobering self-realization about the hobby's continued growth in the face of current comics' diminishing power in the marketplace. But many good things have been accomplished: a lot of data has been unearthed, correlated, and interpreted. Much of it has been done in CBM and much of the rest has been reported here. So the CBM index is an idea whose time has come, and I, like most of you, am eagerly anticipating the access this will provide to that wealth and welter of information.

Many thanks are due—and many more will be due as we fruitfully use the index—to Peter Coogan for his months of diligent effort compiling and cross-referencing. He even threw in the six Overstreet Gold and Silver Quarterlies: thick squarebound albums full of comic book lore. No longer need we despair over the heretofore frustrating task of using these back issues as the superb reference tools that they are. And even Ye Editor got into the act and provided a CBM article, author, and cover listing that makes for a great quick reference as well as a wild ride down memory lane.

Our cover this time out is a spectacular recreation of the classic Planet Comics #1 (1940) sci-fi masterpiece by Will Eisner and Lou Fine. Murphy Anderson drew the redo with an awesome intensity that truly honors the original. Murph is triply qualified as he is one of the greatest SF comic artists, a Lou Fine disciple, and began his career with Planet in the mid-forties illustrating Star Pirate and a well-remembered series of one and two-pagers called "Life On Other Worlds."

The reprints this issue (taking us through CBM #26) are also phenomenal: did someone say Phantom Lady? How about a look at Fox's colorful early Gold title, Science Comics? There is also an article by one of my favorite CBM writers—despite his infrequency—Henry Mietkiewicz, who always shines especially bright (as he does here) when writing about Superman. His contribution, "Tune in Tomorrow," is a fascinating study of the Superman radio show and reveals a veritable plethora of little-known facts about the on-air days of the Man of Steel.

The 1974-1975 Star Trek animated series has been all but forgotten, despite good scripts by the original show's writers, the voices of most of the TV cast, and major studio FX. How this happened is answered in an article that's also a tribute to the Emmy-winning show.

We know everyone loves Steve Ditko's monsters, so here's a review of his Charlton "Giants." Plus there's a peek at an obscure superhero—the Blue Streak. And I'm glad to see the Virgil Finlay piece by Roger Hill get more exposure. His wonderful fantasy art—and he produced a lot of it from the mid-thirties through the mid-fifties—was a major inspiration for many many comic book creators. It's more evidence of our immense debt to the pulps. The little bit of comic book work that Finlay did was first rate as well, including the masterful sci-fi tale "The Mad Planet" that makes Mystery In Space #19 such a break-out issue.

We also have a double set of Gerber "white space" stickers. They stick firmly and go into place easily to become almost undetectable on the page. The reason Ernie left those blank rectangles was in hopes that stamps could be made in the future as the missing books were located and photographed. For those of you who are counting—it's our fourth and fifth set! We need your help with the Gerber "white space" project. If you can supply a color copies of any of the Gerber "white space" covers, Ernie, Gary, and I (along with the minions of loyal Gerber Photo-Journal fans) will be eternally grateful. We'll even give you credit for your contribution right in the sticker page!

Special Edition #3's color section is pretty spectacular too. It features five pages of killer high grade pedigree books from the Bethlehem Collection (from heavyweight pre-Code horror and sci-fi, to a wonderful 1956-59 House of Mystery foursome)... plus Ditko Charltons, Phantom Lady, and Science Comics #1-4.

Here's hoping that CBM Special Edition #3 leads you to new and uncharted collector discoveries and/or reminds you of a few that you may have forgotten!

May you add new "holes" to your want list!

CBM 1-75

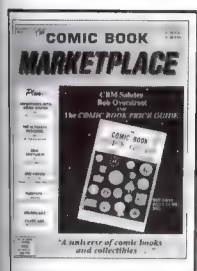

ARTICLE & AUTHOR LISTING

By Gary M. Carter

CBM #1 (Mar 1991; 56 pgs)

Self cover prototype issue; cover art is a caricature of Gary, Lisa, and Ryan Carter in a "marketplace of comics" by Jody Sims; sent free to over 23,000 names on Bruce Hamilton's mailing list who had no idea that it was coming in the mail... so the vast majority of issues were immediately discarded; ironically, CBM #1 had the highest print run in the history of the magazine, yet few issues survived; advertising was given away free.
